

MANNREPORT

August 2006

what's hot

Magical Opening For One Hanson Place

William Dickey of The Dermot Co., Bobby Turner of The Canyon-Johnson Urban Funds, Pamela Liebman of Corcoran Group, Brooklyn Borough Pres. Marty Markowitz, and Earvin "Magic" Johnson of The Canyon-Johnson Urban Funds

37-story, 77-year-old landmark building, now being transformed into Brooklyn's most distinctive condominium building with 189 luxury residences.

Guests dined on sushi and quenched their thirst with Brooklyn Brewery's signature beer, while getting a first-ever glimpse of the model condominiums.

Partners and developers Earvin "Magic" Johnson and Bobby Turner of The Canyon-Johnson Urban Funds, and William Dickey of The Dermot Company, hosted a grand opening party One Hanson Place, formerly The Williamsburgh Savings Bank Building.

More than 500 guests, including Brooklyn Borough President Marty Markowitz and Pamela Liebman of The Corcoran Group, celebrated the official sales kick off for the